for 21 days, the animals’ feet were given a mild electrical shock, which led to a host of problems, including cognitive deficits, immunosuppression and mental depression.

Recent changes in the risk of dietary cholesterol actually support earlier use of statins.

The sale and possession of drugs listed on schedule II are highly regulated.